Many Interesting October Weddings-Personal Notes.

The marriage of Miss Katha rine Heaton Off-ley to Lieut. Ben. Hebard Fuller, U. S. M. C., filled St. John's Church, Georgetown, at high noon today with a distinguished assemblage of their friends, which included many of the old resident families and many others prominent in army and navy circles. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Holmes E. Offiey and a young lady of many charms of person and mind. For the wedding the chancel was elaborately decked with white chrysanthemums and palms. This flower was the token of the event, as the ushers wore one for a boutonniere and the bridesmaids carried bouquets of them. The ushers, principally classmates of the groom, were, like himself, in full uniform. They were Lieuts. W. C. Neville, C. S. Radford and Treadwell of the navy. Marbury and Miss Ellen Beale. Miss Margaret Billings, the maid of honor, walked in advance of the bride, who was escorted by her father.

The groom and his best man, Lieut, C. G. Long, met the bride at the chancel rail. Bishop Nelson of Georgia, a cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in a princess dress of white silk, made with a high bodice, with a deep-pointed girdle, covered with pearl passer menterie. Her tulle veil was held to the hair by a cluster of pearls. She carried the same white silk-bound prayer book from which the service was read on her mother's wedding day.

The bridesmaids wore pretty gowns of white crepon trimmed with white satin ribbons. They also wore large hats of white felt trimmed with ostrich tips.

A wedding breakfast followed at the residence of Mr. Offley, 3030 Q street, at which the bridal party, the relatives and young friends of the couple were present.

Mrs. Offley received the company wearing an and Cartie Sweeney, Edith Sheridan, Christina and Flossie Shultz.

There is far more interest than ever before and our canvass is much more thorough. We are strongest in the ninth congressional district and next to that in the fifth and sixth districts. We have five congressional nominees now. They are R. B. Bonner in the fifth district, J. H. McNeill in the third, M. H. Virginia go republican, not that they so much prefer the policy and faith of the republicans to that of the democrats, but they want a revolution of the democrats at all hazards. attempt to defeat the democrats at all hazards.
The republican and third party leaders now hold almost daily conferences together and both are bringing to bear all their forces against the democrats.

POPULISTS WANT TO BE FELT.

They want to make the presence of their party felt in the national fight as well as in local contests. If Harrison defeats Cleveland in Virginia they will claim the credit of it and will make demands accordingly, as well as use it as a warning to the democratic party when they make demands upon them, the democrats.

This is not the case in respect to the congressional fight. They confidently expect to elect at least five out of the ten Congressmen in Virginia and produce alleged facts and figures to substantiate their claims. They are keeping their orators altogether in the five districts that they claim. They are using every means to hold their men together in these districts. They are thoroughly organized and it has been assigned to duty as collector of campaign subscriptions in this state. He is issuing many certificates of "the republican reserve fund," $10 each. Some weeks ago Chairman Eaves of that party made a statement that he would not need any outside funds, but that the wold not need any outside funds, such that the wold not purpose, as it is asserted by politicians, to me the democrate think there was a split in the party. It was, democrate say, a clever bit

These clubs are banded under one central state organization, known as the Virginia League of Democratic Clubs, officered as follows: Jefferson M. Levy, chairman; William H. Fowle, secretary; executive committee, Lloyd T. Smith, H. W. Page, Meade Haskins, J, M. Crute, Edward W. Saunders, M. M. Rogers, Granville Gaines, Rufus A. Ayers and Edward Echols. Chairman Levy is a the owner by inheritance of Monticello, the home of Jefferson heritance of Monticello, the home here here. He is the oldest state official, having served continuously since 1860. There was some concern at headquarters in regard to his sickness, as it was thought his death would cause trouble as to the tickets. But it is found that should he die the governor would have to fill the vacancy, as the time before the election in such cases must be thirty days to permit a heritance of Monticello.

It can be seen from the above that the democratic party it can be seen from the above that the democrate are thoroughly organized and are wide awake to every emergency. The party managers, and, in fact, all of the public men and politicians are throwing more than ordinary enthusiasm and interest in the work, and those who have made careful tours of the state predict democratic success.

A gentleman who has just returned from a tour of the state and who is considered one of the most careful political calculators in Virginia gave it as his opinion that the democrate would carry the electoral vote of Virginia and also the following summary of the congressional outlook to the STAR representative today:

THE CONGRESSIONAL OUTLOOK.

"From a careful and non-partisan view of the situation I think it can be summed up as follows: The first district is safe for Jones (democrat) and the ventilation of the record of Brown (populist) in the oyster question is making it safer every day. The second district will very probably go for Tyler, democrat, owing to the serious split in the republican party there. The third district is safe for Wise, democrat. In the fourth district (Epes, democrat) the fighting is getting desperately hot and it is difficult to see the end in the republican party there. The third district is assured to Edmunds, democrate. The seventh and eighth districts (O'Farrall and Meredith, democrats per control is and the ventilation of the record of the charge in the minds of the period of the party with the serious split in Pittsylvania county, but the democratic committee have hopes of success. The sixth district is assured to Edmunds, democrate in the minth Marchital and Meredith, democrats respectively) do not appear to be as wide awake as could be desired, but will return these men. In the ninth Marchital country, but the lemocratic committee have hopes of success. The sixth district is assured to Edmunds, democrate in the problem of the party with the corder to cla

The meeting was characterized by the extreme views of the leaders and pistols were openly worn by a great many. Resolutions were finally passed appointing a committee of twenty to investigate the action of the merchants and call a mass meeting at
